Speed a factor in boating accident

■ 11-year-old boy suffers head injuries after 13-year-old cousin drives boat into shore on Fortesque Lake

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Minden OPP say speed was "definitely a factor" in a boating accident near Glamorgan which left an 11 year-old boy in critical condition.

Two children were "just having fun" in a powerboat when it went out of control and crashed into the rocky shoreline of Fortesque Lake, near Contau Lake Road, Wednesday evening. The two boys, who are cousins, were operating a family member's boat without any adult supervision.

The boat's 11 year-old passenger, Tyler Forget, was rushed to Haliburton Hospital and later airlifted to Sick Children's Hospital with serious head injuries. Forget was in the intensive care unit listed in critical condition as of the weekend.

The 13-year-old operator of the boat, Nicholas Fulton, also was taken to Haliburton Hospital, where he was treated for minor head injuries and released.

Witnesses said the two boys — who were staying at a family cottage on the lake — were seen circling the lake at high speeds in the small, 40 horsepower boat just prior to the accident. The 14-foot, fibreglass boat suddenly struck the lake's rocky shoreline and ploughed up onto the shore near a cottage on the north-east part of the lake. The impact of the crash dislocated rocks and earth on the bank.

The accident happened at about 6:00 p.m.

"They were going at above normal speeds... All of a sudden they lost control for some unknown reason and went up onto the rocks. As you can see it isn't a slow boat. It cuts the water pretty well," said a nearby cottager who watched the crash from his paddle boat.

Another witness, Fortesque Lake cottage owner Kim Warlow, rushed over to the accident scene and comforted the 11 year-old boy, who was laying in the boat.

"We just heard the sound of a big bang and saw the boat go up onto the rocks. We heard the screams from one of the kids and rushed over," said Warlow.

Warlow and a friend immediately got into a canoe and paddled over to the boat and waited with the two injured children until emergency crews arrived.

Ambulance crews and First Response firefighters from both Glamorgan and Galway/Cavendish fire departments responded to the accident, which occurred near the border of the two municipalities.

Minden Lions buy clinic

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

A Minden service club's purchase of the Dawson Medical clinic could provide a remedy for the community's health care woes.

After weeks of negotiations, the Minden District Lions Club has reached an agreement to purchase Dr. Stephen Dawson's medical clinic. The club will officially take over the facility, with the equipment included, on Friday.

"As a club, we are very excited about this. I think it is a bold step for us and a very positive step for the community," said Minden Lions President Brian Moore.

"We feel this will be a big help in alleviating the pressure on medical services in the community... Hopefully we can provide some stability which will help to attract new doctors and keep the ones we have in the community," said Moore.

Moore hinted at a possible expansion of the clinic in the future, but said there are no

Fire permits once again being issued

The Ministry of Natural Resources has lifted the ban on fires now that the weather is cooler and there are fewer fires to have to worry about in Northern Ontario. Permits are necessary for all brush fires and you cannot burn between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. The Ministry would like to thank all the recreationists, cottagers and resort owners who may have been inconvenienced by the ban on open flame fires and firework displays over the long weekend.

We were very sad to hear of the passing of Don Fevreau. He was very active resident at Harcourt Park, organizing many events there and in the Wilberforce area, especially curling. He was one of the founders of the Loop Business Association. A real estate broker, he was known for his high standards and his ethics. At the Echo, he was always a person we could call if we had a question or dilemma and his judgement was always sound and honest. In the past few years he's suffered from cancer and volunteers' work was much appreciated. Luckily, the girl was found in the back seat of her family's car.

The Dorset community police committee is hosting a very informative evening about telephone fraud. The guest speaker is from Phone Busters, the OPP's telemarketing investigaand it's important that hockey players attend.

A film crew from Japan was recently at the Highlands home of naturalist Ron Lawrence and his wife Sharon. Mr. Lawrence's books definitely have a wide international audience and the filming has been in the works for five years. He is presently writing another book, having just finished one at the beginning of summer.

A few years ago, someone gave us a list of all the dates when the ice went off Head Lake, but we've forgotten who that someone is. If it's you, please phone us at 457-1037. The Dorset Research Centre is compiling information about ice dates and we'd like to help them by giving them the list. Please give us a call if you've got information on any of the lakes in the county.

On the same theme, a few weeks ago a woman asked the Echo's editor if she knew of a piano tuner who came up in the summer. The editor found the name of a piano tuner but has forgotten the name of the woman. Please call if your piano is still off tune.

immediate plans.

For now, the long-term status of the clinic's staff is up in the air. Presently, two doctors — Dr. Marc Chayer and Dr. Shabaz Warsi — share duties at the facility; however, their contracts expire at the end August, said Moore. (As reported in the Echo two weeks ago, Dr. Chayer has notified Hyland Crest seniors home that he intends to leave Minden at the end of the summer.)

"The doctors are welcome to stay on. We will do everything we can that is reasonable to reach an agreement with (Chayer)... I would hope that we can put an offer on the table that he would find is acceptable," said Moore.

He added that a "smooth transition" of ownership is planned and that "we would love to keep the doctors who are here now."

Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon called the purchase "a tremendous boost" for the community. Anthon is optimistic that the clinic's new ownership will convince physicians in the community to remain in Minden. "The concept of a community clinic is an appealing kind of arrangement for doctors and gives them a level of control that better suits them," she said.

"I'd like to think it gives them another option to consider that perhaps they didn't think they had before."

She added that under the contractual obligations required by the previous owner, "doctors might have been hesitant to sign on."

The clinic, said Moore, can accommodate three to four physicians on a shared scheduling basis "but we will address the possibility of expanding the building to add more doctors."

Lightning strikes twice

Family's Kashagawigamog cottage gutted in fire Wednesday afternoon

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

It appears lightning may have struck the same spot twice, causing a fire that destroyed a 60-year-old cottage on Lake Kashagawigamog Wednesday afternoon.

The Dysart et al fire department has officially listed the cause of the blaze as undetermined, but firefighters have speculated it may have been caused by an electrical problem sparked by a lightning strike.

If so, it will have been the second time the two-bedroom cottage on the south side of the lake has been hit by lightning, says Karen Dunsmore, who owns the property.

The cottage, just south of the Bonnie View Inn, has been in her family since it was originally built by her grandfather, Andrew Robertson, and father, Elwin Robertson, in 1936.

"It was struck 21 years ago and went on fire," said Dunsmore, who grew up in Haliburton, but now lives in Montreal. "The lightning blew the windows out and blew the doors off their hinges. My Mom and Dad were in it at the time and Dr. Good said the rubber soles of the Wallabies they were wearing probably saved their lives."

Dunsmore's 18-year-old son Jonathon had been staying at the cottage for about a week prior to the fire after beginning his summer job at the PineStone Resort.

He heard a very loud crack at about 9 a.m. during a thunderstorm on the day of the fire.

"It woke me up," he said. "It was really loud. It was like a sonic boom."

Two of his friends were playing video games in the living room when the lightning apparently struck, knocking out power to their game and sending small blue flames shooting out of the electrical socket.

The teens noticed no apparent damage or fire after the original strike.

At about 1 p.m., Jonathon and one of the teens, a co-worker who was staying with him at the cottage, went to his parents' summer home on the opposite side of the lake for lunch before going to work. The other teen had left for his job at a nearby camp.

At about 3:30 p.m., firefighters received the first call from a neighbour that the cottage was up in flames.

"It was going pretty good when we got here," firefighter Bob English said at the scene. "There's heat damage in all of the rooms."

Alerted by Murray Fearrey, whose property neighbours the cottage, Dunsmore arrived at the scene while the building was still burning.

"It was very difficult to watch," she said. "I spent all of my summers there. Some of my happiest childhood memories were there."

By 5 p.m. firefighters had extinguished the blaze.

Dysart fire chief

Miles Maughan estimated the damage to the one-storey building at $40,000 to $50,000.

"It could have been lightning," said Maughan. "That's one of the possible reasons. It's hard to say without doing tests."

Because of the low value of the damage, Maughan said the fire department will not call anyone in to do further examinations of the scene.

The back wall of the one-storey cottage and its two side walls are still standing, but the entire front of the building is burnt away and the interior is gutted.

Maughan said the fire department was notified of the fire by someone on the opposite side of the lake who saw the smoke and flames.

When they arrived at the scene they discovered the cottage is actually located in Anson, Hindon and Minden, just outside the Dysart fire department's boundaries.

"The residences on the left side of the drive (into the cottage) are in Minden and the ones on the right are in Dysart," he said. "But we notified Minden and stayed there to put out the fire."

Twenty-one years ago, "Dr. Good said the rubber Wallabies my parents were wearing probably saved their lives." This time the cottage was lost

A SAD END: Dysart firefighter Rod Consack hoses down all that's left of Karen Dunsmore's cottage, which was built by her grandfather and father in 1936. Her son was staying at the cottage but was at work when the fire began. Lightning is suspected as the cause.

Conference examines planning changes' impact on wetlands

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The Haliburton Highlands Field Naturalists have scheduled a one-day conference later this month to examine how the area's wetlands will be affected by sweeping new rules in the municipal development process.

Experts from diverse backgrounds will speak about the impact controversial Bill 163 will have on the county's planning procedures.

The event will take place at the base camp at Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve July 22.

"People should have more input in making the (development) decisions because more of those decisions are being devolved down to local councils," said Peter Brogden, one of the organizers of the conference. "That means people need to be sufficiently informed so they can make use of (their role)."

According to Bill 163, municipalities which already have official plans in place, such as Dysart et al, Minden and Cardiff, will be given the authority to self-approve developments in many circumstances.

Many rural communities that don't have official plans in place, such as Haliburton County, will be required to follow the policies being added to the Development and Planning Act and will be subjected to provincial approval.

The new regulations will also govern where and what developers can build in environmentally sensitive areas.

Brogden says the new legislation carries many serious implications for the region's wetlands.

"We're unsure of how wetlands are classified in general in the Planning Act," he said. "What makes a significant wetland in the south of the province may not apply in the north."

The conference's first scheduled speaker, Dana Kinsman from the MNR's Minden office, will focus on the overall implications Bill 163 may have on wetlands.

Kathleen Kaarsberg, from the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, will look specifically at which rules apply at the province's north-south boundary.

David West, from Ducks Unlimited, may also speak during the morning session.

The afternoon session is to be chaired by Professor Orie Loucks (brother of Foster Loucks, executive director of the Haliburton and Minden Hospitals), who is widely known in the academic field for his work as a zoologist.

Loucks has spent a great deal of time teaching business students how they can help make the world of business more environmentally friendly, said Brogden.

Trent University professor Tom Whillians is also scheduled to speak on a topic yet to be announced.

Brogden said the Field Naturalist need to receive final confirmation from all of the scheduled speakers.

Event organizers are hoping Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson, who has been named Minister of Natural Resources, will also be able to attend the event.

There is a registration cost of $10 to attend the conference and lunch will be an additional $8.

"We're hoping people will register in advance so that we'll have a good idea of how many people are coming," said Brogden.

Advance registration can be arranged by mailing payment to: Haliburton Highlands Field Naturalists, Box 1067, Haliburton, Ont. K0M 1S0.

Ambulance attendant gets job back

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

A Minden ambulance officer, who was fired more than three years ago for trying to start a union at a Bobcaygeon service, has been offered his job back.

The Ontario Public Service Labour Relations Tribunal has ruled that Jim Young was illegally dismissed in January 1992 by the privately-run Bobcaygeon ambulance service for his union activity.

Young was one of the key figures in an effort by the Ontario Public Service Employees Union to organize the 14-member service.

The tribunal's ruling places Young, who says he went through three and a half years of "very tough times" since being fired, in the enviable position of choosing between two jobs.

When he was terminated by the operators of the Bobcaygeon service, Young had been already begun working part-time for the Orillia Haliburton Ambulance Service at its Minden base.

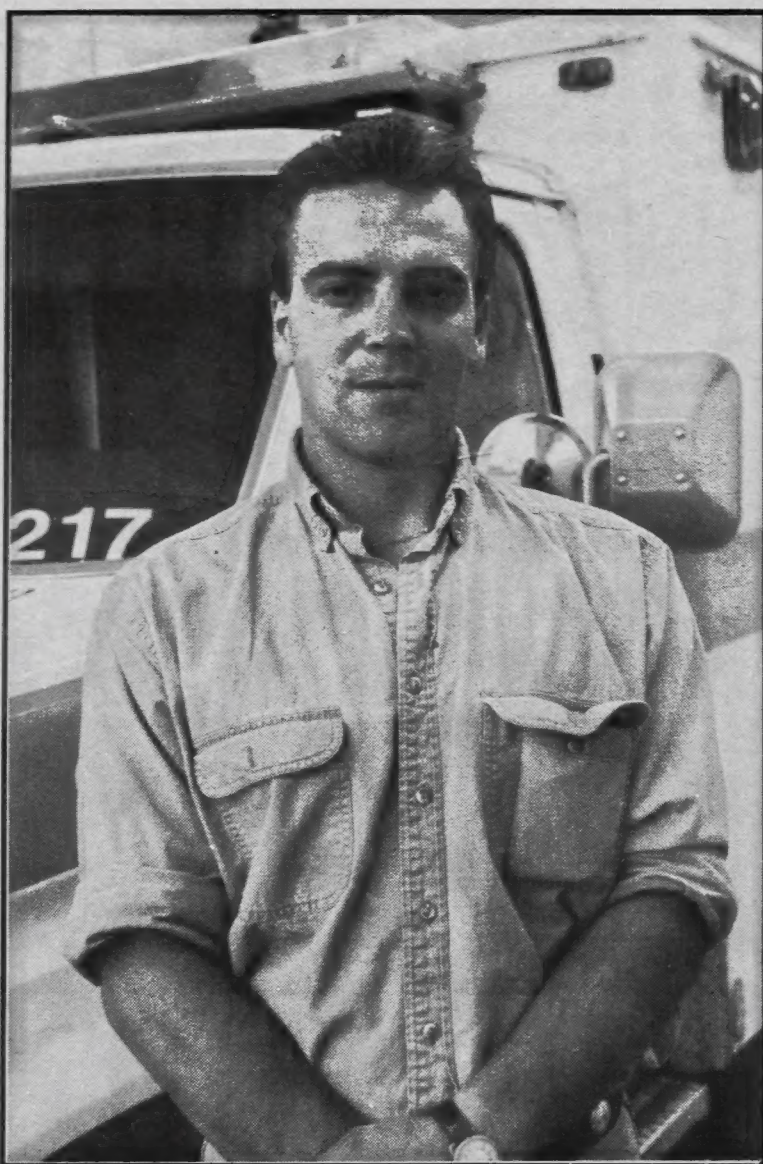

Just three weeks ago the Fenelon Falls resident was offered a full-time position in Minden. Now he has to decide whether to stay where he is or go back to work in Bobcaygeon.

"I won't be sure what I'm going to do until the lawyers get together and start talking to each other," he said.

Young said his dismissal from the Bobcaygeon ambulance service took a heavy personal toll.

About six months prior to being fired, the 27-year-old had just purchased his first house in Coboconk.

Though he still had his job in Minden, he was only taking home part-time wages.

BATTLE OVER: A tribunal has ruled that Minden ambulance officer Jim Young was fired illegally by the private Bobcaygeon ambulance service for his efforts to start a union.

While he was able to scrape by and make his payments, he blames the related stress on the downfall of his relationship with his girlfriend.

"It was pretty tough," he said. "You've got a new house and a mortgage to pay. They say that finances aren't everything, but they do mean a lot."

To make matters worse, about 14 months ago, while he was waiting for the tribunal to cast its decision, Young's house burnt down in a chimney fire.

However, Young is optimistic that his luck has turned around. He has a new relationship, the tribunal voted in his favour and he has a choice of two positions.

"I feel great now," he said. "I'm just glad it's over ... I'm really glad the decision went the way it did. I did nothing wrong and I didn't have anything to hide."

The Bobcaygeon ambulance service owes Young three and a half years' back pay and benefits at about $35,000 per year, minus the amount he has earned working for the Orillia-Haliburton Ambulance Service, which is run by the Ministry of Health.

Glamorgan administrator resigns

Township searches for navigator to replace Mike Rutter

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Glamorgan Clerk-Treasurer Mike Rutter, who navigated the township into the computer era, has unexpectedly resigned.

Rutter, 27, who lives in Bobcaygeon, told stunned council members Wednesday that he has accepted a long-term offer from the township of Alnwick, a small municipality between Peterborough and Cobourg.

Citing family reasons for his decision — the job will bring him and his wife Kim closer to home — Rutter announced he will leave his post August 11.

"I've really thrown my heart into things the last two years so this isn't all that pleasant to do. This is home to me and always will be," said a sombre Rutter after submitting his formal resignation to surprised council members.

Council members, caught off guard by the sudden announcement at the end of the general council meeting, reluctantly signed his resignation. "I don't really want to have to sign this but I guess I have to... The new township is getting a pretty good man," said Councillor Chuck Viner.

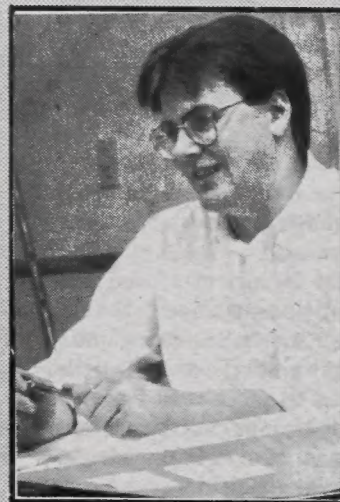

While he was raised in Wilberforce, "I feel that this is my home here. That's the hardest part about the decision to leave," said Rutter, who went on to praise his fellow staff members.

Rutter's notice gives the township five weeks to find a replacement at the helm of the administrative duties. Reeve Elva Bates said the search will begin immediately.

Rutter, who was recently given the added title of Glamorgan Administrator, said that long-term job security — he and his wife are expecting a child — was among the main reasons for accepting the offer. Shortening the commuting distance for his wife, who works in Peterborough, was also a large factor in the decision.

Municipal staff at smaller communities in Haliburton County face uncertainty with the prospect of township amalgamation looming, he added.

Rutter replaced then-Clerk-Treasurer and present Glamorgan Reeve Bates in December, 1993. He had been Deputy Clerk-Treasurer for the township of Somerville.

Mike Rutter announced his resignation at Wednesday's Glamorgan council meeting

Children would need licence, supervision if new boating laws implemented

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Children under 16 years of age should not be permitted to operate a boat without direct adult supervision, a task force has recommended.

The task force, set up last year as a joint provincial and federal government initiative, is to present options to enhance present boating regulations as well as look at the creation of a national licensing and registration system.

Among the task force's suggestions are restricting children under the age of 12 from operating a boat without formal training. It also recommends children under 12 years of age not be allowed to operate a boat more powerful than 10 horsepower.

Children between the ages of 12 and 16 would require adult supervision in the boat.

"We don't want to stop people from training their children from running a boat, but you would have to directly supervise," says task force member Larry Smith, a watercraft educator and first vice-president for the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Association.

Smith spoke on the task force's recommendations at Saturday's annual general meeting of the Lake Kashagawigamog Organization at PineStone Resort.

"For children 12 and up, you would have to directly supervise the children... You won't be able to let the kids take the boat while you sit and watch from the dock 12 miles away... What we're after is safer boating," says Smith.

The task force has been broken into three sub-committees examining an operator licensing system, a vessel registration system and law enforcement.

Smith, who sat on the licensing sub-task force, said the committee is strongly leaning towards mandatory training for all boaters and the creation of a formal accreditation system for educators.

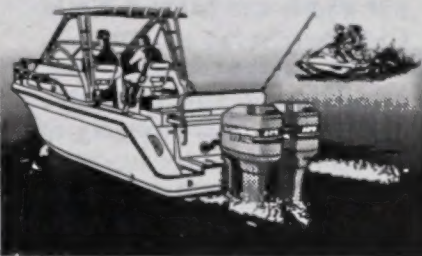

"It's probably one of the few activities in which no licence is required and quite frankly it's one of things that may happen," he said.

The task force will be conducting public consultation hearings in Ontario in August and September.

Statistics show that just eight per cent of boaters take training courses.

The task force is also looking at a national registration system for all boats. Smith said the cost of setting up such a system is unknown and the fees for boat registration could be in the area of $150 per/vessel.

CANNING LAKE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

Work together, residents told

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the Canning Lake Property Owners' Association annual meeting on Saturday. Despite the rain, more than 80 people huddled under the Rigney's car port and umbrellas. The meeting started with a minute of silence in honour of Andy Wilson and Bill Riddell, who past away in the past year.

A community effort

If many of the problems facing the lake community are to be solved, then everyone will have to work together, rejuvenating the volunteer spirit which has been the backbone of the county's development.

This was the theme of three of the guest speakers.

First, there's the doctor shortage in Minden. Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon encouraged members to get involved in the search for new doctors. Without the doctors, emergency services are in jeopardy.

"Help us circulate the information that we need doctors," she said. Tell your friends, tell your neighbours, tell anyone who knows a doctor who might want to relocate to Minden.

"If they want to come in and work one day a week, they'd be welcome," added Association President Ross Rigney. This would be ideal for doctors who want to ease into retirement.

A private medical firm has been hired to provide doctors to work at the hospital, but the contract expires at the end of September. It's a very expensive alternative, and it would be better if a more permanent solution were found. Anthon said "one of the best news the community has had is the Minden Lions Club purchased the Dawson clinic." Doctors won't have to worry about administrative details or the costs of setting up their practice.

The second way people can get involved is by helping the police. Minden OPP Const. Mark Lund, who recently moved back to this detachment, said there is a shortage of police officers, making it very difficult for them to do their jobs properly. For instance, as a cost cutting measure, the marine patrols are no longer based in Minden. Instead, officers periodically come up from Peterborough and Lindsay.

"We welcome lots of volunteers," he said, noting that the Haliburton Police Support Association recently helped locate a lost girl at the Highland Games. Minden also has a volunteer community police association, and people are encouraged to join.

Rigney said cottagers could help by telling provincial politicians that more police officers are needed. The association will

"We as a people must decide where this county is going... We've got help one another if we're going to survive"

also look into a type of "cottage watch" program.

Thirdly, there's the issue of taxation. "There's enormous pressure to come to bear on the county," said Snowdon Reeve George Simmons. "We as a people must decide where this county is going..."

"It's time we've got to work together. We've got to help one another if we're going to survive."

Federal and provincial cutbacks are starting to be felt at the county level and Simmons encouraged everyone to keep an eye on the issues facing the county. (Rigney has been acting as county administrator until the county decides how best to face such challenges.)

Likewise, trustee Wendy Ladurantaye encouraged more communication. The proposed parent councils may be beneficial, but she also noted that if implemented, the members won't be elected by ratepayers. She warned against seeing amalgamation with other boards as being a panacea. "Bigger is not always more cost efficient," she said, noting that administration costs at the Toronto board of education are 10.8% of its budget whereas in rural areas such as Haliburton, it's half that.

She thanked Canning Lake for getting involved in the local education scene by sponsoring two awards at the high school. "The fact you're interested in our students and our schools really helps the feeling that we're all a community."

Boat safety

Const. Lund was asked repeatedly what could be done about boaters who go too fast, especially those on what are known as personal watercraft (Seadoos, etc.) He said that because they're so numerous, they're now being legislated. They fall under the same category as boats, and therefore must abide to the same rules, such as obeying the 10 km/h speed limit within 30 metres of the shoreline. Some personal watercrafts are strong enough to pull waterskiers, and must therefore also have a spotter on board.

"When will we see mandatory licensing - or at least speak in favour of it," asked treasurer Irving Green. Const. Lund agreed with the need for more licensing, especially after the accident near Glamorgan, when two young boys, aged 11 and 13, were seriously injured. "In my personal opinion, I don't think a 13-year-old is old enough to be alone in a boat," said Const. Lund, who is a qualified marine operator.

"The emphasis should be on passing a test," said Green. "I don't know why everyone's finding 100 reasons for not making that a solution."

"Exactly," Lund responded.

Meanwhile, a cottager who lives near a shallow point of land reminded everyone to tell their guests of the danger spots on the lake. Several boats have wrecked their propellers, which ruins a day at the cottage.

And what about break-ins?

In the past, most cottages break-ins were done by local troublemakers. Now, organized groups are moving north. "It's moved from being a local problem to being a provincial problem," said Const. Lund. "It's big organizations who are coming in

CANNING LAKE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

Water quality rated excellent but weed growth is a concern and they're not doing one break and enter, they're doing 10, 11 or 12."

These organizations will take anything of value that they can lift. ("It's usually a local break and enter if there was alcohol in the cottage. It will be gone.")

The problem is most break-ins occur after cottagers have gone home for the winter and aren't reported until they return in the spring. By this time, the trail is very cold.

Simmons said the increase in break-ins is also a problem because of insurance. One woman who had her cottage broken into twice and her home once is no longer able to get insurance.

A recent association survey, which had poor response, listed security as one of the top issues.

Who to call

A recent emergency on the lake highlighted the need to have clear, simple directions placed near the phone at the cottage. The ambulance got lost trying to find the cottage. So two things are important: have the directions near the phone in case it's your guests who have to call for help, and only have one way of describing how to get to the cottage.

There will also be more emphasis on getting improved road signs. People are also encouraged to take advantage of the special promotion being offered by local fire departments. Dysart Fire Chief Miles Maughan was at the meeting to encourage cottagers to buy the $10 alarms, which offer a special pause feature for when you burn your toast. "One of the basic ways of preventing damage and loss of life is smoke alarms," he stressed.

Trent Severn Waterway

When the county was first settled in the 1850s, the economy was driven by the lumber industry. Trees would be cut in Haliburton and floated down river to the mills, thus creating the need for dams, explained Mac Ellis of the Haliburton TSW office. By 1873, most of the prime trees were logged, but the dams remained. Because they were not being used very much, the province agreed to take them over.

Then, by the early 1900s, the canal system from Bay of Quinte to Georgian Bay was completed. Without a constant water supply, navigation would have to cease partway through the summer. A new need was decreed for the Highlands dams. They store up water in the "reservoir" lakes and have it flow through the system in the summer. (Sixty-five percent of the water is lost through evaporation.)

Jurisdiction was given to the federal government, whose mandate was to ensure water levels in the canal system (regardless of water levels in the reservoir lakes, which would later become a bone of contention as the lakes became more developed and cottagers fought to keep as much water as possible.) A dry summer in 1958 caused enough grumbling to make the TSW begin to fine-tune its drawdown techniques. Today, an equal percentage of water is taken from each lake. As well, hydroelectric operations agreed to live with whatever flow was made available so both the people along the TSW and the Highlands lakes could be happy.

Environment

Water quality is rated as excellent, but that doesn't mean there aren't pollution problems on the lake. Once cottager noted there is a growing abundance of weeds in the river, sometimes making it impossible to boat. The association is asking the Ministry of Natural Resources to do a site inspection and offer advice on what can be done.

Helping students

The Canning Lake association is the only local lake association to offer scholarships at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, reported Jim Mitchell with pride. One is for a student who shows interest in environmental issues and the other is for a student who is pursuing some sort of environmental issues program at university or college.

One of the awards will be named in honour of the late Bill Riddell, a lake resident who was instrumental in the association, and his late wife, Olive.

President for life?

It's time to think about a transition of power, Rigney said (to the applause of his wife Lois. Their banter throughout the meeting delighted many, the laughter making everyone forget that it was still raining.)

He's staying on as president but a newly formed committee will look at future changes to the executive.

This year's executive is as follows: President: Ross Rigney; Vice-presidents: Terry Wilkins and Larry Bebensee; Secretary: David Whalen; Treasurer: Irving Green; and Directors: Jack Ballantine, Milt Endicott, Gary Ford, June Gefford, Gus Janke, Paul Kitchen, Florence Lloyd, Mary McCrae, Mike Mitchell, Lois Rigney, Helene Shewchuk, Rolly Wagg, Reg Smith, George Wright, Doug Shaw, Bob Taylor and Ken Marlow.

Resort hopes Bush visit will put it on the map

by PETER DOWNS
Staff Reporter

The PineStone Resort is hoping to put itself and the Highlands on the map with "a very high profile" conference this fall featuring former U.S. President George Bush and a handful of luminaries.

The organizers, who had been tight-lipped about the former president's planned Haliburton visit since it was first reported in May, have now come out with more details.

Some of North America's top business decision makers are expected to attend the exclusive conference, which will focus on the future of business beyond 2000.

And Anne Larcade, PineStone's president and director of operations, is looking forward to seeing the spotlight shine on both the resort and the region.

"When Mr. Bush went to Hamilton a few years back, (his visit) went on the front page of the Toronto Star," she said. "So obviously we are hoping the attention drawn to the event by the media will bring out the name of Haliburton."

While PineStone is hosting the conference, the event itself is being promoted by a separate company, called StoneQuest, which includes Larcade and another principal from the resort.

Only 150 tickets will be sold to the conference, which will be held from October 13 to 15.

Because of the small number of tickets being sold, conference participants will have a good opportunity to rub elbows with the featured speakers.

In addition to Bush, who is scheduled to speak at a "Presidential Gala Dinner" on October 14, a number of well-known experts in different fields will address the group over the weekend.

The list of speakers includes Nuala Beck, an economic analyst and best selling author; Frank Clegg, general manager of Microsoft Canada; Frank Feather, a futurist and strategic marketing expert; Norman Inkster, former president of Interpol and head of the RCMP; Senator James Kelleher, former Minister of International Trade for Canada; and Trevor Eyton, chairman of Brascan Ltd.

A celebrity golf tournament has been scheduled for the final day of the conference.

Larcade said she and the other organizers have been working very hard since last summer to pull the event together.

"We're very, very excited," she said. Christopher Dippell and Karen Lavery were integral in the planning.

Man fights accusation of taking geese without permit

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

A Gooderham man has been charged under federal law for removing Canada Geese from Head Lake in Haliburton.

Bradley MacDuff was charged in June for illegally removing and housing four Canada geese and three goslings without having the proper permit.

The charges were filed by the Canadian Wildlife Service's Guelph law enforcement branch.

MacDuff, who says he is an experienced wildlife handler and will fight the charges in Minden court July 19, was asked earlier in the year by Dysart et al to "do something about the geese problem" at the Rotary Beach and around the municipal park.

He says he has the required permit to remove the birds, which he was housing in cages in his home and planned to move to his private pond. He also owns the two South African geese which summer at the park.

"It has all been blown way out of proportion. I'm just sick about the whole thing. I have the permit needed so I can't figure out what's going on," says MacDuff who says he can't afford to hire a lawyer.

"I only did it out of the goodness of my heart so the kids could play in the park. I don't eat geese or destroy their eggs."

Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey says the municipality fully endorsed the initiative to lower the number of geese in the park and that park manager Jim Elstone was directed to take steps to address the problem.

"It's no secret that we have a major problem here. We have to get it under control. There are over 100 geese here now and if people continue to feed them that number will soon be 200 or 300," said Fearrey. Many people are worried about the birds' feces washing into the lake.

MacDuff says he has possessed a Canadian Wildlife Permit for 20 years, which he just renewed in January. However the law enforcement officer who filed the charges following complaints from residents maintains he did not possess the proper permit.

"I was raised around wildlife and I'm experienced handling birds," says MacDuff, who houses two South African geese which he leaves at Head Lake during the summer.

Fearrey said the Ministry of Natural Resources has been approached in the past about the problem, but "no one wants to talk about it" because the geese are a protected species.

Highlands turn green

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Haliburton County has caught on to the recycling trend.

Eight of ten municipalities in the county could soon be offering a full slate of recycling services, and judging by the rise in use at the existing dumps which recycle, the concept will be welcomed with open bins.

Dysart et al, Sherborne et al, Minden and Stanhope have all successfully launched recycling programs in recent years, contracted out to processing firm Muskoka Containerized Services (which also serves Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve).

Up until now, recycling has simply not been a feasible service for many municipalities. But the skyrocketing values of recyclable materials has changed all that.

Now, spearheaded by Wilberforce resident Roger Johnston, a Mississauga-based firm offering free bin-pick-up service has added Monmouth and Cardiff and Glamorgan to its list of municipal recyclers. A fourth township, Bicraft, is presently considering signing up with the firm, Queensway Recycling Corp.

The service covers just about all recyclable materials such as cardboard, metals, plastic, cans and aluminum.

While several years ago, selling the concept to the public was a challenge, today that's no longer the case. In fact, residents, especially cottagers from urban areas who have long since warmed to the idea, are demanding that programs be launched.

In Monmouth, for example, where the recycling program began just four weeks ago on a trial run, "the response has been incredible," says Councillor Rick Forget.

Johnston, who has launched a northern branch of Queensway's service in Haliburton County, says the the immediate response to the Monmouth program caught him by surprise.

"We didn't expect it to take of this big at all. I was really shocked at how much (recyclables) we got to start," said Johnston, who also works at Haliburton Ready Mix.

The immediate response should come as no surprise considering the gradual increase in recycling at landfills. In the last year, the amount of recyclable trash being collected from the four municipalities served by Muskoka Containerized has climbed significantly.

"It has been a steady growth the last few years... It was just a matter of making people more aware," says Ian Wate, Muskoka Containerized Services recycling manager.

In Dysart et al, for example, 225 metric tons of recyclables were sent out in 1994, up from 179 tons the year before, says Wate. The numbers are similarly higher for Minden and

Sherborne et al. (Stanhope launched its program last year and sent out 75 tons in the first six months of the program.)

In Dysart, the numbers offered don't include the amount of cardboard, which was added to the municipality's recycling program this year and is sold to a separate broker.

Dysart's Haliburton landfill recycling program — which began in 1990 for glass, bottles, cans and newspaper — now accepts a complete list of 21 materials.

With the recent additions of accepted materials, "we are expecting a big increase" in the amount of recyclables being brought in, said attendant Sam Charlton.

The recycling program, said Charlton, "started off like anything else — slow — but people are a lot more aware of it now. More people are buying into it all the time."

Jim McMahon, reeve of Lutterworth, one of the few remaining townships without a recycling program, says cottagers are pressuring him to move ahead with the service.

The high costs have prevented the service from being set up in the township, he said, but "we may be forced into going ahead with it."

One man's trash, another's treasure

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Recycling unwanted trash into hard cash has become a large and lucrative business in the 1990s.

While budget-bound municipalities are extending the lifespans of their dump sites, waste processing firms as far as Toronto are vying for their recyclable materials.

Rising foreign demand and the number of new domestic paper mills have combined to drive up the market values of recycled materials in the past year to "completely outrageous" levels, says Ian Wate, recycling services manager for Muskoka Containerized Services Ltd, which is contracted to operate recycling programs in four county municipalities.

The value of cardboard materials, which were worth $40 per tonne in February 1994, now fetch for about $325 per tonne (as of February 1995), says Wate.

Newspaper values have soared to similar heights, climbing to $280 tonne as of February 1995 from $40 per tonne in February 1994.

The skyrocketing values won't last forever, though, predicts Wate, who must now compete locally with a Mississauga-based firm offering free recycling services.

"The market values we are seeing are out of line and unrealistic. They are being influenced by world-wide factors," he says.

With the staggering costs of maintaining and creating landfill sites and growing demands from environmentally-conscious residents, more and more municipalities in Haliburton County are buying into the recycling trend.

Now, Wilberforce resident

Roger Johnston, who has recently started a northern branch of the Mississauga-based Queensway Recycling Corp., is planning to make recycling a large-scale operation in Haliburton County.

Johnston is attempting to establish a local depot and processing station in Wilberforce. And his rural recycling plans don't end there. He says a "blue-box" type program is in the works which would involve all seasonal and year-round residents in the county.

"I really think it would work up here. We're going on hopes and dreams that the community will work with us," says Johnston who insists the idea is viable despite its failure in Toronto.

Johnston hopes to start the program next year.

A Highlands eulogy

A respected voice in the Highlands is now silent. Jerry Strickland passed away last Tuesday after suffering from cancer.

When Mr. Strickland spoke, you had to listen. Not only did he have a powerful, forthright way of speaking, but you could always trust what he had to say. You didn't have to agree with him on every point, but you had to respect and admire him. (Should you dare to disagree, you had to make sure you knew your facts because he certainly knew his!)

As president of the Miskwabi area property owners association, and later as the executive director of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations, he was a tireless and diligent worker. If he was going to take a stand on an issue, he made sure that he knew every aspect of it. As a result, he was an invaluable resource. If you wanted to know something on virtually any lake-oriented issue, he was a phone call away. Never shy, or hesitant about speaking his mind, he would always amaze you with the depth of his knowledge.

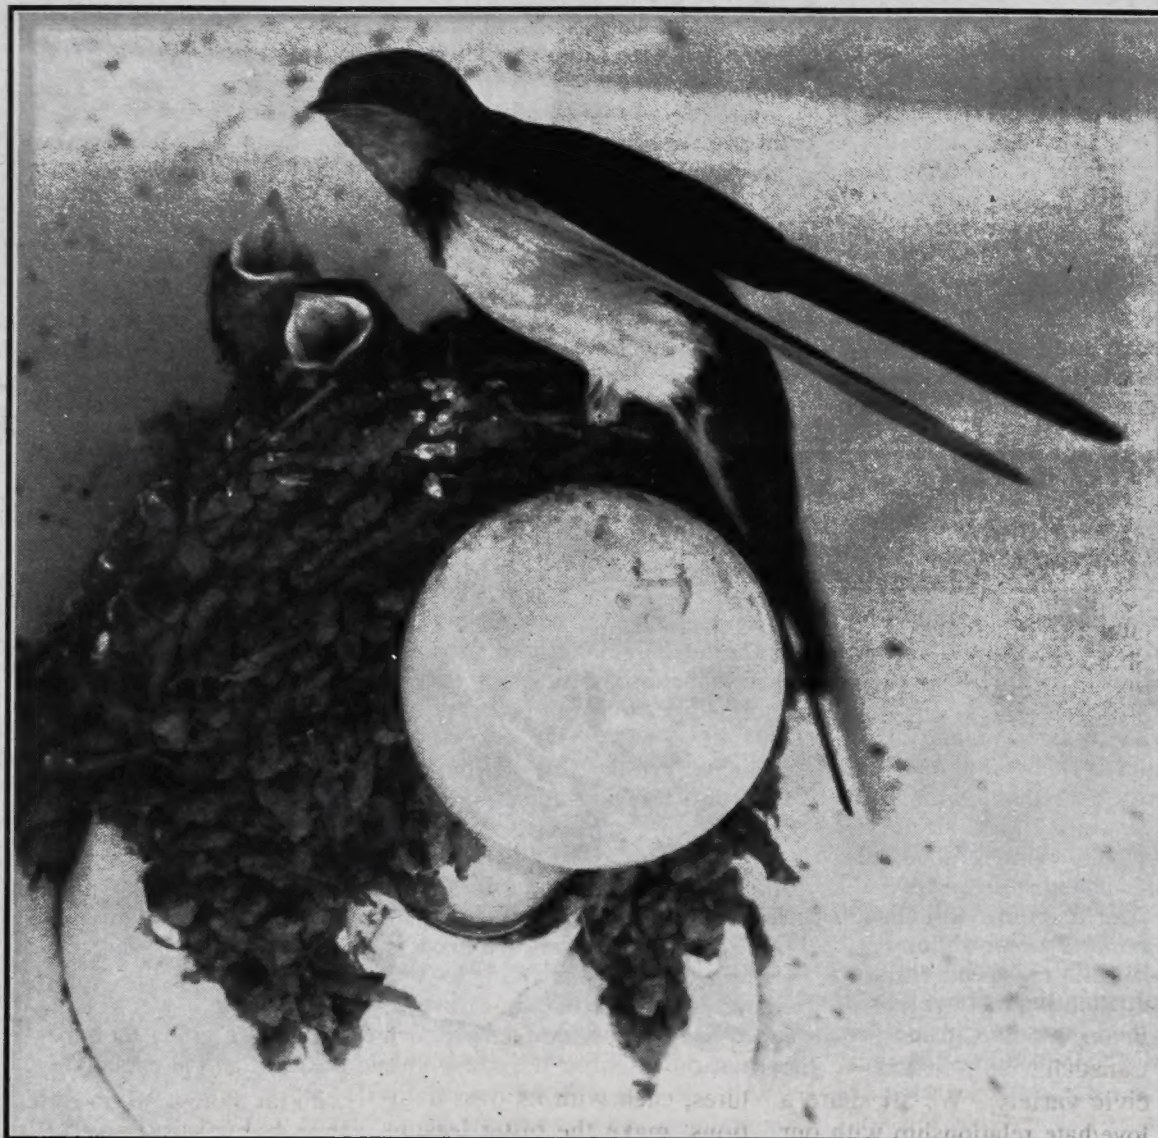

But there was more to it than that. Above all, Jerry Strickland was a fair man. He never drew lines between cottagers and residents. When a large, new development was proposed for Miskwabi Lake, he fought long and hard to ensure that it was done right. Dysart could not make one move without him scrutinizing it. Not because he was opposed to more development, but because he wanted to protect and preserve what he saw as one of our most vital resources. The development will take place, only it will have an unprecedented 1000' buffer zone, thanks in part to him. Yet he was also one of Dysart's strongest allies, forging a strong bond that was personal as well as professional. When some other cottagers were concerned about the expansion of the Haliburton sewage treatment plant, he said it was a necessary step forward. He also said that all property owners, whether they were on the line or not, had a moral obligation to help pay for it with their taxes. Everyone had to pull together and do what was right for the municipality. Cottagers depended on Haliburton and Haliburton depended on cottagers. Realizing that there was a symbiotic relationship between lake and town, he knew that what was good for one was good for the other.

In some ways, in was the true incarnation of a cottager. He loved to fish. He loved to keep things simple. He loved priming the water pump in the spring and putting away the boats in the fall. In other ways, he was never, quote, a cottager, someone who just wanted to get away from it all. By getting involved, by making himself a wider part of the community, he was a true Highlander. He proved that you didn't have to be born here to be accepted.

One of the things you learn from writing newspaper obituaries is that if you have something good to say about a person, you should say it when they're alive. People have known about Mr. Strickland's cancer for more than a year and in during that time, they made sure they did not save their kind words for the funeral, which was Friday in Scarborough. A few weeks ago, we printed a profile of Mr. Strickland, our way of acknowledging his contributions to the Highlands over the past few decades. As well, the Miskwabi association paid tribute to Mr. Strickland and his wife Monica last summer, presenting them with a painting of their cottage. It brought tears to the eyes of a man who was not prone to being emotional. Cottage Life magazine is also to be praised for always giving space to Mr. Strickland so he could try to impart his common sense wisdom to others. His was a voice we don't hear often enough.

It is not an empty phrase when we say the condolences of the community are with the Strickland family at this time. They are feeling his loss most acutely, especially since they shared with him a strong tie to the cottage and its more relaxed way of life. It will be difficult for them to return to Miskwabi without him, but in the silence of the lake as dusk falls, when it's time to go out fishing, he will surely be there in spirit.

Head Lake geese a nuisance

To the Editor:

It has been brought to our attention that a Gooderham man is being charged with a criminal offence on a technicality for having removed, transported and keeping wild geese taken from Head Lake Park in Haliburton. He believed he had the necessary Canadian Wildlife Services Permit of Environment permitting him to do so.

He apparently was invited to remove the gees by the Municipality of Dysart et al in order to rid the park of a source of pollution on the walkways, play areas and grass; very timely considering this is the weekend of the Highland Games in this park.

It seems a shame that this man is being solely charged as a criminal for doing something that has removed a source of nuisance for so many even though he has a permit to do so. In addition to the charge, he has encountered considerable personal expense.

In pioneer days it was expected to find wildlife in the Haliburton town area but now with so many people around and the area built up as it is, wildlife can become a nuisance. In addition for people wishing to see wildlife, opportunities in this area are unlimited in wildlife parks. Certainly Head Lake Park is not one of those areas.

Where the deer and snow cat play

Last Thursday morning, deep into my hurry-up routine, with the washer and dryer and CBC weather going full blast, I glanced up from the sink full of dishes when a movement outside the window caught my eye.

I've always had this thing about a window over the kitchen sink. I need something to distract me from the monotony of dirty dishes. Years ago, in Tonawanda, I could watch the kids playing in the back yard. Nowadays, I have this broad vista that constantly changes.

This time of the year I'm usually watching and listening to birds. The humming birds sit on the clothes line or the tip of the cedars behind the back porch, waiting to challenge each other for rights to the feeder. Killdeer are shrieking and soaring over the field, along with dozens of bright bobolinks. In early evening the lemony goldfinch all perch on the top of the chicken wire holding up the sugar snap pea vines. Every now and then the cooper's hawk glides over the field, then swoops down to grab an unwary mouse or mole.

NORTHERN LIGHTS

I also enjoy watching Yeti (the abominable snow cat) making his twice daily rounds on the property line. He crouches down beside the marsh, jiggling his rump before pouncing on a mouse. Sometimes, in playful moods, he'll spring into the air after a butterfly. I've seen him laying stock-still, carefully watching a snapping turtle lumbering by.

Just watching the sky can be pretty interesting. For some reason the storm patterns frequently take a path over the hills on the back side of Cranberry Lake. I can often watch the lightning shoot around in dark clouds over those hills while the sun is shining here. Sheets of rain engulf the forest there while my porch and field and garden remain dry. It's both fas-

Canada more than sum of its parts

I'M NOT SURE what my ancestors were doing six hundred years ago. Probably those on my Scots side were resisting the damned English imperialists, and those on my English side were skirmishing with the bloody Scots barbarians. In any case it's not something I'm overly concerned about, and those wars of long ago have little relevance to my everyday life. Many Serbs, however, can describe in detail the battle of Kosovo, in which they went down to glorious defeat at the hands of a Muslim Turkish army in 1389. Six hundred years later the president of Serbia, Slobodan Milosevic, outlined his nationalist agenda in a watershed speech inspired by that ancient battle, and the Yugoslav Federal Republic soon thereafter ceased to exist in any meaningful sense.

Journalist Michael Ignatieff spent his childhood in Yugoslavia, and has studied the nationalist impulse in depth. In his book Blood and Belonging he categorizes most Canadians as belonging to the civic variety. We all share a love/hate relationship with our country's institutions which define us. Proud of our history of tolerance and compromise, we usually welcome foreigners providing they respect Canada's traditions and obey its laws.

Ethnic nationalists are another breed altogether. The extreme fringe tends to live in the past and brood upon the triumphs and injustices of bygone days. Their major goal in life is to create an exclusive community based on a quasi-mythical sense of race and culture. Ethnic nationalism reached its destructive zenith in Hitler's Nazi ideology, and Canadians gave their lives in World War II to defeat it.

In ex-Yugoslavia, former President Tito tried to impose a civic nationalism from above, and his dictatorship did ensure peace and relative prosperity. He did not, however, allow the various ethnic groups - Serb, Bosnian and Croat - to resolve their differences through dialogue and the moderating influence of shared democratic institutions. Ancient hatreds reappeared with the collapse of his regime, politicians on both sides enflamed public opinion, and we are now reminded of the appalling results on every newscast. To us the situation seems bizarre: Serbs, Croats and Bosnians speak a similar language, wear identical clothing, eat the same food and until a few short years ago intermarried and lived together in relative harmony.

The fact that Canada is a nation of three founding cultures, each with its own traditions, make the bitter lessons of history too relevant for even us to ignore. Unlike the microstates of the former Yugoslavia, we have a long democratic tradition, and our ability for compromise and reason have allowed us to successfully navigate the shoals of national disintegration. It is not, however, something we should take for granted. A country torn apart peacefully is just as dead as one sundered through violence. Canada as a whole is much, much greater than the sum of its parts.

Pic of the Past

In days gone by, the middle of July was always marked by the Orangemen parade. This photo from July 12, 1946, shows the parade making its way towards to four corners in Haliburton, with the town hall in the background. In the front left corner is Bertha Porter. Behind her is Mary Robertson. Myrtle Davies is carrying her son Richard. Behind Mrs. Davies is Lizzy Ann Deacon and behind her is Leda Roberts. The onlooker on the right is Geraldine Sawyer (Howe.) Our thanks to Mrs. Robertson's daughter, Karen Dunsmore, for sharing the photo and information.

Some jobs only seem odd

LINDA WAS STARTING TO GET discouraged. She had asked every grown up she knew and many she did not, if they would give her a summer job. But the answer was always the same. No one was interested in hiring a fourteen year old girl with no more work experience than babysitting and selling GirlGuide cookies.

To her fellow young cottagers, Linda was clearly suffering from too much summer heat. The prospect of forsaking the joys of swimming, sunning and dreaming about boys seemed a fate too terrible to be even considered. However, undaunted, Linda continued her search. She had a goal.

Boys and tans were all very nice, but after the summer had passed, the tans faded and the boys forgotten, she wanted something substantial. She wanted roller blades. Top of the line, sleekest of sleek, able to leap tall buildings in a single bound. But for this, Linda needed money.

Her mother had told her quite firmly that money was tight and if she wanted roller blades, she would have to earn the money herself. Although a bit discouraged, Linda knew there were things she could do. She made up notices saying she would do odd jobs, with her phone number on tear-off strips at the bottom and stuck them up in prominent places.

Then she waited. Several days passed, then a week. Not a call. Then, after a week and a half, Linda was rewarded with one call that ended up being her employer for the summer.

Mr. North was an older man, meaning to Linda he was anywhere over forty years old. He and his wife lived not far from one of the stores where Linda had posted her odd jobs notice. Mr. North had phoned, thinking "L. Black" was a teenage boy. At first he was hesitant that Linda would be able to do the work. She assured him that indeed she could and would, as long as she was paid. They worked out a payment system, flat rate for half a day of her best efforts, and started out slowly with cutting grass.

Mr. and Mrs. North lived on a terraced lot. It took Linda two half days to cut the grass. When her mother picked her up the first day, she noted Linda's face was the colour of the radishes in her garden. Linda made little reply, having already mentally immersed herself in the lake waiting at the cottage.

From grass, Linda moved to stacking firewood. Mr. North liked his wood piled in a certain way, according to type. Maple and beech were the most plentiful, but there was some oak and birch as well. Linda had never taken much notice of trees until that summer, let alone those reduced to six inch lengths. She learned a lot about bark.

When her mother picked her up after a half-day of piling wood, the radish face was less noticeable. This was due to a smudged layer of grime and sawdust that covered her face, coated her hair and lay in the folds of her plaid work shirt. The welcome relief of the lake washed away all traces of firewood, but her aching muscles were more resistant.

Week after week, despite Mr. North's assurances that she could quit at any time if the work was too much for her, Linda doggedly continued her summer job. Her tanned friends waved at her from their boats. Her social life had become a barren wasteland. But her legs and arms were lean and strong, her back used to hours of effort.

Linda knew that come fall, when her flabby friends were sitting in front of their city televisions, she would be skimming the streets on her brand new roller blades, her muscles rippling in the wind.

A taste of tranquility

cinating and frustrating.

Ah, but Thursday, when the movement of colour caught my eye and I looked up, there in front of the grove of evergreens down near the lake was a lovely doe carefully observing her twin fawns at play. The small fawns were kicking up their heels and running around the young trees. They gradually came nearer to the house, stopping still now and then as the doe looked around for signs of danger.

I shut off the radio, stopped the washer and dryer, and went onto the porch. The mother looked at me, and somehow signaled to the fawns. We all stood still, until the doe decided I was no threat. They came even closer up the lane, and were almost to the side of the house. Nanook, the great north dog, must have finally caught their scent. He never barked, and he couldn't chase them. But when he lifted his head, his dog tags jingled. The doe and her fawns bolted back down the path, but they didn't disappear into the tall brush as I thought they would. The doe seemed to know the dog was chained. The fawns followed her back down amongst the young trees, where they continued to frolic and graze for maybe twenty minutes or so before she led them off into the brush.

Things ran a little behind that day. The dish water was cold. I forgot to restart the machines for awhile, and I had to psyche myself up to face the traffic of downtown Haliburton. But how nice for us that nature sends a little taste of tranquillity our way now and then to get us through the busy days.

HANGING UP HER BAT:

Nancy Brink and her good friend and co-organizer Pat Cowen are both retiring from their duties running Haliburton Minor Softball.

Nancy's field of dreams:

Softball organizer retires after 15 years of making sure kids have fun in the summer

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Fifteen years after launching the community's first minor baseball program for children, organizer Nancy Brink has decided to hang up her bat and glove for good.

The West Guilford resident and former women's pro softball pitcher founded the Haliburton Minor Softball program with the help of three others in 1980. The organization was created in an effort to fill in the time for local kids.

"There was a real need for it. There were no leagues at the time for children at all. All of these kids had nothing to do," recalls Brink adding "there was a super response. All these kids just came out of the woodwork."

The mixed, non-competitive 'league', which was set up with the help of umpire Bill Hartin, Roy Scott and Walt Prime, immediately attracted about 100 children, a number which has since doubled over the years.

While the other organizers moved on long ago, the former Provincial Women's Softball Association pitcher has continued throughout the years sharing her wisdom and love for the sport with local children.

Her weekly tips to youngsters on the finer points of the game ranged from the intricate mechanics of swinging a bat — "always keep those elbows up" — to the proper etiquette of behaviour between the baselines — "never throw your bat".

"I just love all of the kids. I enjoy teaching them the fundamentals of the game and seeing them learn and have fun. And the response I would get from the kids was very satisfying."

And in Nancy Brink's field of dreams, fun is the key word. Few scores are ever kept, the teams change weekly and parental pressure, she insists, is non-existent. On Wednesday nights, when the gloves and caps go on, "those 200 children are mine," says Brink, sounding like the protective mother.

"Everyone gets to play; it's all equal. I'm very strict with safety and I won't tolerate parents hollering at their kids."

Brink made the decision to call it a career three years ago, but when there was no replacement to step into her shoes, she reconsidered. This time, there will be no turning back, she states.

"Baseball was my life but now it's time to pack it in," Brink says, quick to highlight her appreciation for her "right hand" and treasurer Pat Cowen, who will also close the books on her role with the organization.

Calling it quits on the game and the program which she has kept going for a decade and a half won't be easy, admits Brink. "It's time for someone else to take over," she says.

Her desire to devote more time to her church life — she launched the Sunday Supper Club a few years back and more recently a local prayer group — is among the reasons for her decision.

Brink has concerns about the future of the organization and ponders its future when she leaves at the end of this season. "I'd really hate to see it fall apart; I've put too much work and time into it over the years. But I am worried about that."

KINMOUNT MODEL RAILWAY

The Kinmount Railroad Club's mandate is to design and construct a model railroad depicting Kinmount to Haliburton, circa 1900 to 1925. The model is to be on display at the Pioneer Society's Exhibit during the Kinmount Fair on Labour Day weekend. The goal is to complete the section from Kinmount to Haliburton this year and the remainder in 1996. Kinmount Lions have taken on sponsorship of the model and are now in the process of launching a fund-raising project to cover costs. The club is planning to sell sponsor plaques at $25 each. The Kinmount Fair Board has already started the ball rolling purchasing the first plaque. Plaques will be displayed along the model.

Council washes hands of dam dilemma

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Wednesday evening's Glamorgan council meeting.

Dam decision

Council has washed its hands of the Tamarack Lake dam issue.

The simplest thing to do about the illegally-built dam was absolutely nothing, and that is exactly the route council members chose to take.

Residents who live on the shallow, private-access-only lake had asked the township to repair the broken dam, which was built in 1977 by the father of property-owner Ron Winder without municipal or provincial permission. The dam sits on what is believed to be township property; however access can only be gained through private property.

"I just don't see how we can justify putting money into a private lake that has no public access. I think what we've done is fair," said Reeve Elva Bates. "I don't think we owe anything to anybody... It's a private lake, private roads, private everything," added Councillor Chuck Viner.

Council unanimously agreed to wash its hands of the issue, and more or less let residents settle the problem themselves, even if the complicated issue ends up in the courts.

A resolution was passed authorizing Winder and a group of residents to remove the existing dam and replace it with a newly-constructed one — on property owned by Winder's numbered company, as suggested by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

"The most practical way to do it would be to build the new dam behind the existing dam, and then remove the existing dam. If the new one is built on private property it would resolve the problem for us," said Deputy-Reeve Bill Challis.

Then there's still the touchy issue of what the water level should be set at once the new dam is constructed. The MNR has said it will leave that decision in the hands of the residents, who have been asked to reach a consensus.

"They want to hear from the cottagers but that will be one big hassle because you're not going to get consent from the ratepayers," said resident Bob Winder.

Since the dam has deteriorated in recent years — the culvert rusted out four years ago — the lake water level has dropped. Some residents have expressed concerns about a higher water level threatening septic beds, while others are worried about losing their shorelines if the level drops.

"The whole thing could get so involved it could end up in a court case between cottagers," warned Winder.

Recycling deal

A Mississauga-based firm's proposal to set up a recycling program in Glamorgan has been accepted.

Queensway Recycling Corp, which also has deals serving Cardiff and Monmouth, will soon launch a program which includes a wide range of recyclables such as cardboard, newspaper, cans and metal and plastic.

The firm will be dropping off containers for the materials at the landfill and picking them up when full — at absolutely no cost to taxpayers.

The recent skyrocketing values of recyclable materials have made the business a lucrative one. But some council members wondered just how long the inflated market values will last.

If the initial program is successful, the firm plans on launching a household, blue-box-type program in the future.

Rising rates

Glamorgan's municipal insurance rate shot up 25 per cent this year.

A number of extraordinarily high liability claims awarded to accident victims in various municipalities in the province is the main reason for the jump, insurance broker Paul Dorman told council.

"It has been quite a year in our business... It's almost to the point that insurance companies just don't want this business anymore. They've had some pretty drastic awards," said Dorman in explaining the reason behind the increased cost of coverage this year from $12,000 to $16,000.

Claims involving "millions and millions" of dollars were awarded against a number of cities and townships recently, resulting in across-the-board hikes as high as 30 per cent.

The insurance covers the township staff and council members in the event of a work-related accident, as well as the municipality when hosting various activities.

Events the township annually sponsors or hosts include the Horseshoe Days demolition derby. "A demolition derby causes me to sit back and go 'whoa'," said Dorman, unsure if such a risky event would be covered.

Although Glamorgan has held the smash-'em-up derby each year for over a decade, Dorman said he has no recollection of it.

Co-organizer Peter Raklowski told Dorman that "in the whole time we've held the derby, we've only seen one bandaid used. There has never been a serious accident or injury."

Dorman said he would look into whether or not the township is covered for such an event, and advised a waiver form be signed by each driver absolving the municipality of any liability.

"I hope before you consider dropping this (from our coverage) you come and see the event and inspect the pit. You have to watch how these people test and safe-proof the cars. If someone comes in with an unsafe car, they aren't allowed to compete," said Bates.

Infrastructure bonus

The township will take advantage of an extra $13,000 in infrastructure funding being offered out of the Haliburton County portion of allocated money.

While the county's revised infrastructure application hasn't yet been formally approved, indications are strong that it is coming soon.

Administrator Mike Rutter said he has been advised that an added $13,000 is available on top of the original $50,000 Glamorgan application.

After lengthy discussion, council agreed it would be foolish to pass up the offer. "It would be a shame to turn down free money," said Viner.

The funding — of which the township will have to match one-third — will be used to replace the equipment at the children's playground.

"There is a real need for it. The playground is a disaster waiting to happen and it's a liability," said Rutter, who added that parents are afraid to let their kids play on the equipment.

WATCH OUT WHEN WORKING UNDER POWER LINES

Take extra care when working near overhead power lines. Never allow yourself or the equipment to come close to or contact the lines. Anyone touching that equipment will be seriously injured. Or killed. And stepping out of a vehicle that is touching the lines could be fatal.

Shattering the image of stained glass... an artist profile

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

Minden stain glass designer Karl Hamilton wants to shatter the general public's image of his art form.

Hamilton, who was one of three Canadians to go on a recent international design seminar at the Derix Glass Studios in Germany, presents a slide show tonight at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. The presentation is sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands School of Fine Arts and will display the visual masterpieces designed by the world's most creative stain glass designers. Hamilton promises the show will give people a glimpse into the latest in cutting edge design styles.

"I hope to break down people's preconceptions of stain glass. I want to expand people's awareness of it beyond the stereotypes," says the 42 year-old artisan from his Scotch Line studio in Minden. "This will show some of the possibilities and capabilities of stain glass."

While architectural church and gothic designs are the traditional forms associated with stain glass, the German styles "push the limits of the medium."

Hamilton's three-week trip to Taunusstein, Germany included visits to some of the world's most breathtaking architectural installations, many in institutions which generally are not open to the public. The controversial and groundbreaking, three-story high Radio City abstract design by the late Georg Meistermann was among the highlights of the tour.

German designers, he explains, have an extra edge over North American counterparts. "The system over there promotes good design. Here individual studios are designers, fabricators, whereas in Germany the designers only design. The advantage is they are more specialized... The more time you spend on designing, the more you improve."

The focus of the trip was to learn the design, construction and installation techniques used by the world's top stain glass creators and share his findings with other Canadian designers.

The experience of witnessing first hand the 20th century styles used in Germany, as well as meeting the designers behind them, "was a real treat," says

Hamilton, whose own works can be seen at Apparitions Fine Art Gallery in Minden.

"I feel very lucky that I was able to go. To see how those other designers work has had a strong influence on me. It will influence my work for the rest of my life. Now I want to share the knowledge with everybody."

Hamilton's work, which includes the 1982 stain glass installation at the Eagle Lake church, includes figurative and abstract styles, all which are a reflection of the beauty of the Haliburton Highlands.

"By looking at the landscape and trees you can generate many different abstract patterns. The area is very much a part of my life philosophy, almost in a spiritual way."

One of Hamilton's pieces, titled White Pine, which received an award of excellence, is placed in the internationally acclaimed Canadian Clay and Glass Gallery in Waterloo.

Tonight's slide show will include examples of medieval and renaissance stained glass, but will focus mainly on modern 20th century glass by world leaders in glass design.

A NEW LOOK AT AN OLD ART FORM: Cathedral windows are no longer the prime venue for stained glass creations, says Minden artisan Karl Hamilton, who will be giving a slide show about his recent trip to Germany tonight at the high school.

WATER WELL RECYCLING

Ontario Water Well FRACTURING

Hydro-Fracturing is the process of using water under extreme pressure to break the barrier that is preventing an underground water source from flowing freely into a well. This is not a new technology; the process has been used in the oil fields for some 75 years. The technology is new to the water well industry.

ONTARIO WATER WELL FRACTURING has built their own hydro-fracturing machine. This machine fractures the underground rock, and opens up the fissures that are blocked. Sometimes the blockage is caused by the drilling process itself.

• PROTECT YOUR INVESTMENT •

A piece of land, a home or a business is of no value without water. The cost of this service can be measured in more than the dollar value... water is absolutely necessary to life itself.

We service 2,6 and 8" wells. We also clean Dug Wells.

• HIGH TECH. MACHINE •

The high pressure components for our machine have come directly from the oil fields. The machine produces 4500 psi (pounds per square inch) and pumps up to 200 GPM (gallons per minute), creating an extremely high pressure in the well. This extreme high pressure opens blocked water veins, producing a higher output well. By fracturing an existing drilled well, we can improve the flow of the GPM, even if the well is considered dry. The cost of drilling a new well can be considerable, with no guarantee of water. We will hydro-fracture an existing well or a new well with a guarantee of increasing the present GPM or no charge.

• AVOID UNNECESSARY COST •

If you do not have an existing well and are considering drilling a new well... WE CAN SAVE YOU MONEY! 95% of all wells considered dry, that we have hydro-fractured, we have found water between 50'-300'. WE DO NOT DRILL WELLS - WE GET WATER. Give us a call before you drill too far.

The Success Rate of Hydro-fracturing is 90-95%.

Shopping on the main street, reading the latest newspaper or simply enjoying a brief chat with a friend.

While they may sound like part of life's everyday routine, for some of the residents at Hyland Crest seniors home in Minden, they are small life pleasures which can ease the loneliness and isolation.

"A lot of residents don't have friends or relatives living in the community. They are just put here and left with no one to talk to or walk with," says volunteer Muriel Harrington, who runs the mobile tuck shop in the home.

Activities Coordinator Doris Robertson has issued a call to all past and future volunteers in an effort to bolster the home's team of volunteers.

Robertson has organized a volunteer drive week for July 17 to July 21 in the hopes that people with a few hours of time each week will come forward to help brighten the days of residents.

The volunteers are needed mainly for one-on-one programs as simple as walking and talking with residents, going on outings and reading and writing letters.

"It is those one-to-one type programs we need people for. The importance of dedicated volunteers can't be underestimated. It gives residents an interest in life and keeps them alert," says Robertson.

The sacrifice of devoting one's volunteer labour, says Harrington, brings equal returns. "I get far more out of them than I give," she says. "It's very rewarding to see a smile come to someone's face. Sometimes you'll see someone crying because they don't know who they are or why they are here and you just go over and talk to them and give them a hug and their tears disappear."

Some may feel uncomfortable being around elders, but awkwardness is easily overcome,

Hyland Crest resident Beatrice Tustin enjoys a visit with Muriel Harrington says Robertson. "A lot of people are hesitant working with seniors but there is nothing to be afraid of. These are people who are very easy to talk to and to love. They have a wealth of knowledge about life and have so much to share."

A banner is to be raised above Minden's main street this week in an attempt to attract volunteers. A registration and orientation period will be held every morning during the week of the drive to educate volunteers about the home.

Frequent visits from volunteers are what prevent residents in the home from feeling detached from the community, says Robertson, and "we need that contact. If not, then they are isolated. It shows that somebody cares."

With some people, a soothing word or a reassuring touch on the arm makes all the difference. With others, it takes a little more time to find the right way to reach out. Everyone feels pain differently. By taking time to listen, we discover what we can do to make things a little easier."

LAKE KASHAGAWIGAMOG ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

Phosphorous levels drop...

but secchi disk tests show water clarity not as strong

by STEPHEN SHAW
Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Saturday morning's annual general meeting of the Lake Kashagawigamog Organization at PineStone Inn with about 100 persons present.

Water quality

Lake Kashagawigamog's water is cleaner, but not clearer.

Water quality test results show a marked overall improvement since the 1980s. The tests, however, also found phosphorous levels at the south end of the lake to be double the levels found at the north end.

"The quality dropped (in the late-1970s and 1980s) but it has gone back up. We have had some problems in the past with our lake but it is improving — so we're doing something right," summarized LKO lake steward Trevor Babbs.

Ministry of Environment and Energy classifications rate the phosphorous levels in the lake as 'excellent', while secchi depth results (evaluating water clarity) declined and are rated 'good'. MOEE classifies the lake overall as good.

Results showing a dramatic rise in phosphorous levels downstream of the lake's lodges surprised few, but nonetheless were a concern.

The phosphorous content of water samples taken May 21 from the north end of the lake and Silver Beach show 6mg/per litre, while samples taken downstream from the lodges found a jump to 12mg/per litre at Venture Bay and 14mg/per litre at the south end of the lake, Babbs reported.

"That is quite a jump and we will have to look at that... Even if the sewage line (being built along the lake's north shore) came tomorrow, there is still residue which will take time to wash out," said Babbs.

The high readings downstream were expected, said President Mary Hincks. "Sure it's high, but I'm not particularly shocked. This isn't anything to panic about. We've known for a long time about the need for the (Dysart) sewage plant expansion. Until the lodges hook up to the sewage line, I don't think we will see any significant change," said Hincks.

The lake's overall improvement — despite the significant drop in water clarity — is a sign that lakefront property owners are thinking green, said Hincks.

Increased awareness in the harms of phosphorous — a chemical that promotes the growth of weeds and algae which steal the lake's oxygen — is the key to continuing the quality-improvement trend.

"Lakefront owners are better educated about phosphorous-free detergent, washing in the lake and fertilizer. But there are still large numbers of people who don't know that fertilizer contaminates the lake. It is an ongoing education process," Hincks said.

Babbs explained the drop in water clarity is likely linked to increased boating traffic and weather conditions.

Build a buffer

Shoreline residents are being encouraged to create a 10 foot green 'buffer zone' to lower the amount of nutrients entering the lake.

Under the Maple 10 project, an association promoting environmental protection, residents are awarded a lot sign sticker if they create a buffer zone — a strip of plants and trees to act as an environmental barrier between the cottage and the waterfront.

So far, three residents have been awarded their one-inch yellow sticker following inspections by the organization's environmental committee.

"The project keeps the lakefront as green as possible and reduces the amount of nutrients entering the lake," said Babbs adding that some residents have taken to planting trees in the buffer zones.

Calling it quits

The association's executive will have a new look to it as President Mary Hincks, Vice President Trevor Babbs, Treasurer Bill Chandler and Secretary Dale Walker have all stepped down.

Hincks, who has been actively involved with the organization for the last four years, was vice president for one year and prior to that one year as president.

Now, it's time to get back to the water. "I have a red chestnut canoe I haven't dropped in the water for four years," said Hincks in a following interview.

After four years of attending meetings, preparing newsletters and coordinating the lake's lot identification, Hincks now plans to return to devoting her time to painting and her home Christmas studio.

New blood

The new executive brings with it an Ingoldsby flavour.

As well as living in Ingoldsby, both President Brian Watts and Treasurer Lynne Bertrand are relative newcomers to the association.

Watts, who has been President of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association for the last six years, was the lone nomination for the position.

Watts joined the association following his purchase of the Ingoldsby General Store last year and is a former councillor on the Dysart et al council. He has been a Haliburton resident for 15 years.

"He is a very easy-going and friendly person who will do a great job carrying on the organization," Hincks said.

Bertrand, the lone nomination for treasurer, recently moved to the lake following her and her husband's purchase of the Lofty Pines Cottage Resort (formerly Kenmar Lodge) in Ingoldsby.

Also adding to the Ingoldsby connection is new Secretary Patty Morrison as Secretary. Phil Boulton, a long time Haliburton cottager, was appointed as new vice president.

Morrison co-manages the Ingoldsby General Store and is also a director of the HCSA and Women on Snow.

LKO's new district representatives are Lloyd Rockett, Jim Aikman, Loureen Scott and Bud Thorne.

Trout regulations

Ministry of Natural Resources biologist Dana Kinsman talked briefly about the trout management plan. The regulations are aimed at restoring the population of the fish species in local lakes.

For Lake Kashagawigamog, the proposed regulations would ban live bait and require lake trout between the sizes of 16 and 22 inches be returned to the water.

On smaller, naturally reproducing lakes, a total winter fishing ban is called is to be implemented.

However, the regulations — scheduled to take effect next year — may never get final approval from new Tory MNR Minister and local MPP Chris Hodgson. Like many local fishing hut and tourist resort operators, Hodgson says he has concerns about the impact the regulations will have.

The MNR contends the new plan is needed to stop overharvesting of lake trout, which are declining in populations in many lakes.

Reeve's remarks

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey and Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon made brief presentations.

Anthon spoke on the doctor shortage in Minden and asked for residents to spread the word about the need for physicians willing to relocate to the community.

Fearrey promised to keep the municipal tax rate in line with the rate of inflation and assured residents that the hospital restructuring in Haliburton County is making progress.

Speed limit

Waterskiers and 'Seadoo' users have stirred up waves of protest from annoyed residents who say they are violating speeds and operating recklessly.

"I'm getting all sorts of complaints from members that they are breaking the law going much faster than the 10 km speed limit (maximum within 100 feet of shore). It is a major issue," Hincks said.

"I've approached people and they just get upset with me... and there isn't the marine police patrolling our lake."

Waterskiers and personal watercraft users riding too close to the shoreline disturb fish spawning beds and contribute to shoreline erosion, she said.

"Personal watercraft are a pain and there is more than one jerk on our lake," Fearrey added.

Surprise visit

The lake's most popular resident, Minister of Natural Resources and Northern Development and Mines Chris Hodgson, says he'll remain just as close to the community as ever now that he's a cabinet minister in the new provincial government.

"I'm still living on the lake and I'm accessible; so don't hesitate to call if I can help out," said Hodgson in a brief, unscheduled appearance. Hodgson spoke about his first two weeks as a cabinet member and reported that the forest fire crisis in northern Ontario "are over for now" thanks to recent rainfall.

He vaguely alluded to the MNR's controversial proposed trout regulations saying "everyone knows fishing has a huge impact on the local economy and the business it attracts here."

He said his Tory government plans to make good on the numerous promises that it made during the election campaign.

Canada Day's top citizen award goes to Erma Sisson

Congratulations to Erma Sisson who was awarded Canada Day's Citizen of the Year along with acknowledgment of her husband, Ron's, community life and achievements over their years together in Guilford.

Bernard and Joyce Sisson have spent three weeks in Europe. Bernard participated in hockey at Olympic arena in Austria and Italy while travelling.

Carol Duncan accompanied Elsie and Brian Henderson on a trip out west for several weeks recently.

Grace Bellamy, a Cranberry Lake summer resident, visited her sister Dorothy Denston in Peterborough recently where they celebrated their sister, Eleanor Prentiss' birthday in a surprise party. Barbara Sisson was also a guest at this occasion.

Congratulations to Terri-Lynn Barry, daughter of Merrill and Merrie Barry, who graduated from Nipissing University, North Bay on June 10 with her B.Ed.

King and queen for the day at Guilford's celebrations on July 1 were Danny Koz and Bethany Chumbley. Danny also distinguished himself in winning the

At St. Andrew's Church on July 2, Helen Bradley was installed by the Rev. Christopher Greaves as summer assistant for the parish. The church extends a warm welcome to her and her family as they worship with us this summer.

The Rev. John Phillips was guest speaker at St. Andrew's on Sunday, July 9 and received a "welcome back!" from the congregation. George Claridge was speaker at B.A.C. in the meeting before the service. If you missed B.A.C. so far there are still two Sundays: August 13 and September 10 when you can come and enjoy breakfast at 7, served in the style of Guilford cooks! Also, you hear a good speaker on these occasions.

Belated greetings to three Guilford birthday people who share Canada's birthday: Wade Stamp, Jaro Cooper and Kyle Urquhart.

Welcome to Rebecca Rose Currie, a little sister for Johnnie. Rebeccas was born July 3 to Sue and John Currie. Sue's mom, Gloria Penhale, is at the Currie's on the Barry Line to help out while Sue is in Peterborough Civic Hospital. Other members of the family will also be visiting to help out.

Bruce Wright of Melfort, Saskatchewan, has been a guest of the Earl Coopers for a week. He is related through the Boice side of the Cooper relatives.

Join the fun on Still Road in Eagle Lake on July 15 as Rhubarb Festival and attendant activities take place. It is a full day, and who can resist a street dance to round it off?

Samantha Cowie was baptized July 2 at St. Andrew's. Samantha is the daughter of Steve and Brenda Cowie and granddaughter of the late Joe and Iris Gibbon. We welcome her into the communion of Saints and to St. Andrew's Anglican.

Wilberforce celebrations pay tribute to fallen soldiers

The Canada Day celebrations were well attended. The Legion paid tribute to their fallen comrades and then raised the flag. The crowd sang, 'O Canada' and one verse of 'The Maple Leaf Forever' followed by 'Happy Birthday'.

The garage sales at the Curling Rink and the Anglican Church had articles for sale ranging from candlesticks to chesterfields and beautiful baked goods. The United Church Strawberry Supper was the crowning touch of the day with salads, cold meat and strawberry shortcake to top it all off.

The Red Cross Outpost Historic House will be open daily from 10 to 4 during July and August.

The Agricultural Fair Roast Beef Dinner will be held as part of their weekend on Saturday, July 29, beginning at 5 p.m.

Also, as part of the Agricultural Fair weekend, back by popular demand, The Schemes of the Driftless Shifter will be held on Friday evening, July 28 at 8 p.m. at the Lloyd Watson Center. Admission is by donation, so anyone who had to miss it last time, this is your chance to see a great comedy, starring all your favourite local talent.

Country Good Times gospel service this year is at 8:15 a.m. at St. Margaret's Anglican Church as part of their 75th anniversary.

Kristal McGee is well-known to many in the Wilberforce and Gooderham areas where she was student minister in 1991. Her former congregations are looking forward to having Kristal with them on August 13 for the Decoration Day Service.

Kristal Ann McGee currently resides in Grey County, but Burton Avenue United of Barrie is her sponsoring church. In 1981 that church welcomed her family from Sudbury, and has supported her in various endeavors, from guiding a blind Nordic skier in the Disabled Olympics to completing a research project in Malaysia.

More traditional study activities have earned her a degree in international development from the University of Guelph and M. Div., at Emmanuel. She is also married and has a daughter.

Currently a member of a team at First United in Owen Sound, she has also received training from Annesley United in Markdale and Wilberforce and Gooderham United Churches. Kristal says, "I am sure I will discover new ways to love, serve, and celebrate in ministry." We wish you God's blessings in all your endeavours.

Highlands popularity greatly underestimated

I live off the main road so am not aware of the increased summer traffic until I make my weekly foray into town. No more letting the car virtually guide its own way, while my thoughts are miles away, only to surface with a start and recognize the stop light in Haliburton.

All the bustle and energy has landed in our placid midst - the novel dress and hair cuts, the single-mindedness to obtain supplies, services and amusement by these guests. Even the familiar sales people, seem rejuvenated - distant, intent, absorbed and happy.

Can all the visitors find accommodation? I feel a stab of pleasure that I am now resident and secure in the Highlands. Twenty-one years ago I badly underestimated the popularity of Haliburton.

Having only 'discovered' this area the year before and purchased considerable acreage with no buildings, we drove up from Quebec on Saturday of the Thanksgiving weekend, confident in finding not only a contractor to begin building in the spring but also accommodation for the night. The contracting bit, by what I now know, was sheer miracle, was easily solved, but for a night's lodging we went as far south as Coboconk. Now it is pleasure to show our guests what our beautiful highlands can offer, namely the Eagle Lake Rhubarb Festival on July 15.

All volunteers feel a mounting excitement!

Bakers do have your goodies in at Rhubarb Hill by 3:00 p.m., July 14, for judging. Awards and an auction sale will follow the 10 a.m. opening ceremonies of July 15.

Horseshoe game registry ($2) and entry numbers ($1) for the River Race are available at The Eagle Lake Store.

Set-up for vendors and craft people will start at 8 a.m. Kids, be ready with your decorated bicycle for the parade and judging later.

Heritage Walk #1 of "The Rhubarb Mile" copies are now available at the store or the festival.

At 4 p.m. following judging of "the longest rhubarb stalk", led by Bill Medland's flute band, the activities move to the four corners for the evening events of beef barbecue supper, sunset cruises and street dance. See you on the 15th.

Local Cadets off to Borden military camp

OFF TO TRAIN: Haliburton's Cadets headed for the Borden military base near Barrie Saturday for military training camp.

A group of 16 Haliburton County Cadets headed off to one of Canada's oldest military bases Saturday for a summer of regimented fun.

The Cadets, ranging in age from 12-19, left for the Borden Military Base near Barrie, where they will be joining their fellow Cadets from across the country at Blackdown Park.

A total contingent of 24 local Cadets will be leaving for Borden this summer where they will undergo training in one of fifteen courses at the Army Training Centre Blackdown. They will be joining various programs such as marksmen, general military training, drill and ceremonial, physical training and band.

The early rise and regimented lifestyle of military camp, says Sgt. Corina McKee, makes for an unforgettable summer experience. "It's much better than a normal camp because you do so many more things. There is more responsibility and you get to shoot guns and stuff like that," says McKee as she takes her seat on the departing bus for her second year at the camp.

The Cadets will be arriving home at various intervals during the summer, depending on the length of their program.

The camp was sponsored by the Haliburton Legion with other branches chipping in as well.

Dancing cloggers beat the heat

Monday afternoon the folks were treated to a movie, "My Secret Garden".

Tuesday morning, chapel service was conducted by Rev. Fred Elson. He is a retired United Church minister. Doris played the organ. Thank you for coming, Reverend. In the afternoon we did crafts; would you believe we are making Christmas decorations already. Tuesday evening, Corinne Arsenault assisted the residents with cards.

Wednesday morning was time for fitness. In the afternoon Pearl called for bingo. She was assisted by Frieda Hulbig.

Thursday afternoon, the Hyland Crest Ladies Auxilliary held a Strawberry Tea. They are very conscientious about money raising as that money goes towards improving the residents lifestyle here at the home. Many thanks, ladies.

Friday noon we held a picnic in our new outdoor activity area. A bus load of folks came from Extencicare. It was a beautiful day for an outdoor party. The kitchen prepared a lovely lunch complete with ice cream cones. Everyone seemed happy. Following lunch we moved to the auditorium for our regular happy hour. The Cloggers from West Guilford put on a wonderful variety of dances. It was so hot I don't know how they managed to stay erect. Come back anytime folks, as we sure enjoyed the dancing. We served goodies and beverages. Thanks to Extencicare volunteers for their help.

Saturday afternoon, John Menzies entertained in the main lounge. In the evening, we held our first Strawberry Social Supper. It was very well received. I had so many compliments about the meal. Food was plentiful and tasty as well. We hope to make it an annual event. On behalf of Hyland Crest I would like to say, "Many thanks to all the folks for the donations of delicious food. Also, thanks to all the volunteers who worked so hard at the supper." Without you folks we wouldn't be able to hold this type of gathering. Above all, thanks to Doris Robertson for all the organizing and the instigation of the dinner. She has great ideas, believe me.

Sunday, Rev. Burgess held chapel service, Ruth Worthington played the organ. Thank you, Reverend.

It was a busy week at the Hyland Crest. That's what makes it such a great place to live.

Trivia: On average you open the refrigerator 22 times a day.

100 YEARS OLD:

Annie Aikman celebrates 100 years

Canada was still a very young country when Extendicare resident Annie Aikman moved here as a girl with her family from Scotland.

On Sunday, the day after Canadians marked their country's 128th anniversary of confederation, friends and relatives helped Mrs. Aikman celebrate her 100th birthday.

Mrs. Aikman, affectionately known by most at Extendicare as Annie A., moved to Canada and settled in Toronto with her parents and seven brothers and sisters in 1911 or 1912.

Eventually, she and her late husband raised their two sons in the Toronto area, as well.

However, her only surviving son, Haliburton resident Jim Aikman, says his mother, who was born in northern Scotland, has always had a strong attachment to the north.

"It's very fitting that Mother is spending her remaining years right on the edge of God's country."

Mrs. Aikman has been a resident of Extendicare for the past five years.

On Sunday Mrs. Aikman was led by piper Earl Cooper into a roomful of friends and relatives from the Toronto area and Haliburton where she enjoyed a birthday luncheon and cake.

The room was appropriately decorated with a sign wishing Mrs. Aikman a happy birthday in large, tartan letters.

Damp weather couldn't spoil event for Extendicare residents

Our bingo was substituted with Ice Cream Parlour last Tuesday, and what a treat it was in the heat.

On Thursday, we had an afternoon tea with the ladies from St. Paul's Anglican Church in Minden.

Friday, Pastor Paul Benson led the church service and Connie played the piano. The movie in the afternoon was action-packed from beginning to end; it was called Ironwill.

On Saturday, we changed from summer to winter clothes to go over to Rotary Park to see the Highland Games. The kitchen packed us a great lunch, and we enjoyed the entertainment very much between the wind and the rain drops. Thanks for the help, Grace, Donna, Beth and Sandra from the DYMO.

COBOCONK

News

Sheila Lake 454-2307

Thelma Watson was thrilled with so many turning out to her 80th birthday celebration on Saturday, June 27.

Thank goodness our road is fixed up! Last week, on the 23rd, the Somerville road crew had our road all ripped up, and there was white dust choking those who live on Baseline Road for 24 hours a day since we live on a very busy road. If you were driving up Baseline and met a car, it was like being in a "white-out" in a winter snow storm. The road was like that all weekend, then finally, it was watered down on Monday or Tuesday. Royale Paving crew was here real early on Friday but had to wait quite some time, since foundation work by our township was not quite ready. Anyway, the road job was finally done for our long weekend, and it is a really pleasure to travel on now.

Thank you Pat, up at Eagle Lake, who phoned me last week to say she appreciated my column. Well, at least I have one fan!

Congratulations to newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hachie. Their wedding ceremony was just over, when the Bexley Fire Department trucks rushed to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce next to the church, as there was a short, or faulty connection in the automatic teller. No serious fire, thank goodness!

Sunday morning, July 2, Jamie McVickey and his wife of Peterborough, were guests at Faith Tabernacle. They work with the Children's Aid, and are always looking for foster parents in this area, where children can be placed for short or long term care.

Jamie's job is to investigate potential foster parents and said there is also a need for volunteer drivers.

Also, Steve Coates and his family from Bradford were guests, and Steve spoke on his work with the Pioneers Ministry, based on Salzburg, Austria.

The first "open air" service at the IGA parking lot was held Sunday night, and guest singer was Maurisa Ellis. July 16, there will be an Ecumenical service, 9 a.m., in the park and the singers for the open air service that night will be 'Emmanuel Praise'.

Congratulations to Fred and Yvonne Brecht, who celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary.

Get well wishes go out to Bill Pitkin, who has been ill. Bill and his wife Ruth, from Rosedale, have been staying with their daughter, Earl and Johann Prentice here in Coboconk for several months since neither Bill nor Ruth are well.

Ingram Wessell is also under the weather with a very painful knee problem.

The end of the month often sees some people moving, and Frank and Kathy Miller have moved to Oshawa and Darlene Levesque has moved in that house. A young couple from Maritime Road has moved into the house vacated by Darlene. The young couple in the Bryant house, across from the funeral home, have moved to Fenelon Falls, and Roger and Rita Boyer have moved into that house.

We also have a new neighbour beside us, in the former Sandy Richman house, but have not yet met them.

A young lady named Esther from Germany, is visiting Dave and Laurie Campbell and family. Esther has been visiting

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Coates at Bradford.

The Coboconk Ridgewood School Choir enjoyed a bus trip to Toronto to see "Joseph and His Coat of Colors".

Sympathy goes out to the family of the late Ruth Cammack who died last weekend. Ruth had been ill in hospital, but was back home again, and her passing was indeed a shock.

I'm sorry also to learn that Mrs. Eaton of Norland, has passed away. Her husband died just a very short time ago.

Get well wishes to Pearl Brohm who had surgery.

Decoration Day at the Bexley cemetery was held recently, with several ministers in attendance. I believe this is the first decoration day service held at this little cemetery.

Everette and Jessie Cameron and Myrtle Faulkner attended the wedding of the Cameron's granddaughter, Andrea Sider, who married Fred Fryer, in the Presbyterian Church, in Lindsay, on Friday evening, June 30. The wedding reception was held in the Moose Hall. Andrea is the daughter of Ron and Marilyn Sider. Congratulations.

The Coboconk Horticultural Society is having a flower show on July 15 during Coby Days. It's on Olive Bryant's lawn across from the funeral home. Entries must be received by 10 a.m. Judging is at noon. For further information please call Joyce, 454-1946, June 454-2040 or Joan, 454-2707.

News

Ann McKay

489-2924

Home for the long weekend were Fred Gregory of Ottawa, Ken McKay and family of New Caledonia, and David Moore of Keswick.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bell were in Aurora on Thursday attending the funeral of a close friend.

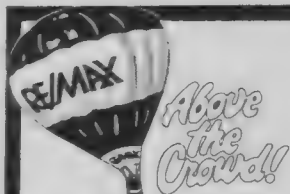

Congratulations to the Haliburton Legion pipe band on their 25th anniversary. A dance was held in their honour on Saturday night.

The annual yard and bake sale at Zion Church is on July 22. Any clean and useful articles would be appreciated. Sale is from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

A bridal shower was held in the C.E. building on Sunday afternoon for Debbie Thomas, daughter of Bud and Diane Thomas.

Many friends and relatives attended. Debbie, with her bridesmaids and flower girl, Brittany Thomas, were kept very busy unwrapping the many lovely and useful gifts. Debbie and Derek Beachli will be united in marriage on August 26.

Don't forget to mark your calendar for the annual "Bluegrass" festival sponsored by the Haliburton Legion held on July 21, 22 and 23. Rough camping available.

Arts and Crafts Show

Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre

As part of the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre's 50th anniversary celebrations, a select show of environmentally inspired arts and crafts is being sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts.

Theme: Natural Inspirations
Date: August 19 to 24, 1995
Place: Leslie M. Frost
Natural Resources Centre
Dorset, Ontario

Applications may be obtained at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery (Minden, Ontario) or at the Rail's End Gallery (Haliburton, Ontario) or call the Rail's End Gallery at (705) 457-2330.

Deadline for applications is Monday, August 7, 1995 at 5:00 p.m. (local time). Space may be limited for entries received after this date/time.

Criteria: Work must be of original design and quality of execution, inspired by the natural environment of Haliburton County. Absolutely no kits or designs based on artwork, photos, etc. created by another person other than the participant will be permitted. Participants must be residents (seasonal or permanent) of Haliburton County.

330 THANK YOU

A HUGE THANK YOU to everyone who donated items to the "Monmouth Curling Club's" very successful yard sale that was held on July 1st. Also, to all the people who worked very hard and helped in a lot of ways, our sincere appreciation. Congratulations to the 50-50 draw winner in the amount of $90, Verlene Sinclair of Tory Hill. Dorothy and Harold Bebbington, and Dawn and Jack Carr, Conveners.

310 NOTICES

330 THANK YOU

WE WISH TO THANK the Haliburton Fire Department for their speedy and efficient response to the fire at our cottage on Lake Kashagawigamog. Thank you also to neighbour, Cindy Rowden, who called in the alarm. Sincerely, Karen and Don Dunsmore.

A SINCERE THANK YOU for the many expressions of kindness extended to Tom and I during my recent illness. The cards, letters, flowers and casseroles were certainly appreciated. The prayers and thoughtfulness shown helped us through a difficult time. He-len Regan

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK everyone for their kindness and support in the recent loss of my beloved husband, Larry Cooper. He may be gone but he will always be in my heart forever. Thanks to everyone for the food, flowers, cards; a very special thank you to Chris Nelthorpe for all his help and for staying with me at the hospital until family arrived. A special thank you to my mother and father-in-law for their love, to Aunt Mary and Uncle Les Pockett for helping with the funeral arrangements, to my Mom and Dad for being there right away and staying with me. A special thank you to Gary and Cindy Rowden for their support, also, I would like to thank family and friends. Thanks to Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home for their kindness. Last, but not least, thanks to the pallbearers, Chip Trueman, Gary Rowden, Jason Rowden, Mike Rosenberg, Stan Parish and Roy Burk. A special thanks to my sister, Judy, for being there for me. Thanks also to the staff of the C.I.B.C. Everybody's thoughtfulness and kindness will never be forgotten. Holly Cooper

LESLIE A. PARNELL of R.R. 2, Haliburton wishes to thank all the staff of the Haliburton Hospital for the loving care and attention they gave me during my stay. I will never forget. A special thanks to the radiologist who attended me at 1:30 in the morning. If everyone took a page out of your book what a better world it would be! God bless you all and thanks a million! Sincerely, Les Parnell. A special thanks to Dr. Bob Heyes, Dr. Hartwick, Dr. Ferracuti and Dr. Stephenson for the dedication of their services. I will always be indebted to you. I can never thank you enough. Sincerely, Les Parnell.

WE WOULD LIKE TO express our heartfelt thanks to our family, friends and neighbours who helped us celebrate our fiftieth wedding anniversary on Friday, June 23, at Lochlin Community Centre. A special thank you to Mildred, Lois and Betty for all the planning, preparation and decorating of the community centre that made the evening so very special. Thanks too, to all who supplied flowers, to the Lochlin United Church Outreach Committee, to Yuvadee for her lovely drawings, to Jon for the great banner and all who prepared the delicious food. Special thanks to Rev. Harry Morgan for his heartwarming message and prayer. We are deeply touched and truly blessed. Shirley and Jack Hill

THE FAMILY OF the late Charlie Wise would like to express our appreciation to Dr. Bottom and the nurses at Haliburton Hospital; to Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home; our friends and family for their calls, food, flowers, cards and memorial donations in our time of sadness. Thanks so much and God bless.

THE HALIBURTON Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and coordinator, Dorelle, would like to thank the following who assisted at the Blood Donor Clinic, July 4: Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 129, especially Jim Tice, who went far beyond the call of duty (thanks, Jamie); Nina Chambers and ladies, Legion Auxiliary - as usual, these gals did a fantastic job; Eastern Star ladies for donations of goodies; Charles O'Neil (IGA) and Michael Easton (Valmart), for donations - we thank you once again for your kindness; to the press for their coverage, reporters, Peter Downs (Haliburton Echo), Andrew Milne (Minden Times); and now to the 25 kind folk, who gave of their time (and you know who you are) to assist with various tasks. We sincerely thank you. 200 people attended - collected 184 pints with 16 deferrals. You are very much appreciated. CA

THE STAFF AND STUDENTS of J.D.H.E.S. would like to thank our Grade 7 families for donating goodies for our Graduation Reception on Friday, June 23, 1995. Special thanks to Lise Ainsley, Nancy Dunford, Shirley Finlay, Dianne Hagerman, Karen and Sarah Parish, Wanda Reynolds and Delane Sawyer for their wonderful help serving and cleaning up. CA

WORDS NEVER SEEM enough to cover the thoughtfulness and tender loving care given our late husband and father, Mark Vasey, during his lengthy illness at home and while in the Haliburton Hospital. Thank you to Dr. Wu, Dr. Heyes, the nursing staff and the ambulance crew. To all our relatives and friends who offered condolences, cards, flowers, memorial donations and food, the wonderful staff at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home and the ladies of Minden United Church, we thank you. Carrie, Gary, Glen & Hugh Vasey.

GOFF, SAMUEL ARM-STRONG: Born in Clarksburg, Ontario on March 14, 1903 to Rev. Frank D. Goff and his wife, Louisa. Died in Richmond Hill, June 27, 1995. After graduating from Toronto Normal School he taught school for 8 years including becoming a principal of a two-room school at the age of 19. He decided on a career change and went back to school to become a lawyer. As a member of the Law Society of Upper Canada he practiced law for over 40 years most of the time at his office on Yonge St. near Eglinton Ave. in Toronto. He moved with his wife to Gooderham, Ontario in 1971. Predeceased by his wife Jean, his brothers Wesley, Ernest and Bert and sisters Bess Hall and Ethel. Survived by one brother, Reg (and his wife Vera) now residing in Arizona. He leaves his sons, David and Peter and daughter, Catherine, son-in-law Rod and two grandchildren. He was a former member of the Lions Club. At the time of this death he was the longest standing member of Gideons International in Canada. A funeral service was held at Uxbridge on Saturday, July 1. Interment at the cemetery in Gooderham on Sunday, July 2 with committal message by Rev. Maurice Bradley. Donations may be made to the Gideon Memorial Bible Plan - Haliburton Highlands Camp, 501 Imperial Rd. N., Guelph, Ontario N1H 7A2.

400 IN MEMORIAM

HILL, JACK - In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away July 9, 1993. God looked around His garden And found an empty space, He then looked upon the earth And saw your tired face. He put his arms around you And lifted you to rest, God's garden must be beautiful For He only takes the best. He saw the road was getting rough And the hills were hard to climb So he closed your weary eyes And whispered "Peace be Thine". It broke our hearts to lose you But you do not go alone, For a part of us went with you When Jesus called you home. Betty and Chris UPTON, HAROLD - In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away July 10, 1974. A sadness still comes over us Tears in silence often flow Memory keeps you ever near us Though you died twenty-one years ago Your memory is as dear today As in the hour you passed away. Always loved and remembered by wife, Laura and family.

CHURCH'S STRAWBERRY SUPPER DRAWS A HUNGRY CROWD

GOODERHAM

News

Anne Costeloe
447-2400

The Reformed Church Strawberry Salad Supper was on Saturday, July 1. It was delicious - as usual, attracting a hungry crowd.

With the arrival of summer, the horseshoe pits beside the community centre vies with Pine Beach for the busiest place in Gooderham! Saturday, the 24th, saw the annual Gooderham June Bug Horseshoe Tournament. The event is sponsored by Gooderham resident, Bill Piels. of OSACA Log Homes. First place went to Wayne Parnell and Brian Smith, second to Jim Skinner and Marne Byrnes, and third to Ron Barr and Mark Vincent.

The Recreation Committee has arranged for the Ontario Sailing Association to run the B.O.O.M. (Best Ever Optimist Mobile) Sailing program at Pine Beach. The sailing program is for children between 7 and 12 years. It will run from August 18 to 20. Contact Cathy at the township for further information, 447-2410.

Red Cross and Royal Life Saving swimming lessons will begin on Monday, July 31, at Pine Beach. Details available at township office.

The annual Gooderham Horseshoe Days is approaching quickly. The event will be held on August 4, 5, and 6. There will be a midway, concessions, dances, beauty pageant, talent show, craft sales, photo contest, pet show and much more! On the 6th, there will be a demolition derby organized by the firefighters.

The parade will be held on Saturday morning. The Shriners will be entering a marching band. Groups and individuals are invited to enter floats in the parade. Children with "mini-cars" or decorated bicycles are encouraged to enter. There will be a prize for the best entry. Contact Cathy at the township for more information.

Euchre results for June 29 are: men's high score - Bill Shaw; lone hand - Jim Routcliffe; women's high score - Dorothy Graham; lone hand - Erna Holtz; booby prize - Maria Stoughton.
